to make a great deal of difference in the feed bill.

The Division has just received a large shipment of field and garden seeds and is now in a position to supply the growers with almost any quantity of the standard varieties. This seed was bought under a recent act of the legislature and will be sold at cost to all persons applying for the same. Price lists will be sent to persons applying for the same. All orders must be accompanied by post money order or check as no accounts will be opened for seeds.

The recent advertising campaign to sell surplus island produce direct to the consumer has been fairly successful but there are still a great many island onions on the market which are moving very slowly. The crop from Haiku, Maui is practically all in the market but there are probably 15 tons of No. 1 island Bermuda onions on the windward side of this island yet to be marketed. These onions are much larger and better cured than those that came from Maui. From recent experience with the Crystal Wax on the Division would recommend that this onion be grown for home use only as it is very hard to cure and bruises easily in shipment.

Kaahui Confesses Murder And Arson

the kitchen ignited a second blaze that the cabin might the sooner be destroyed.

His Return Witnessed

Upon his return to the place where his wife had been killed, he was met by his wife's sister and niece who were camping, he stripped and took a bath in the stream before lying down himself. But his return was noted by the sister and niece, girls 13 or 14 years of age, who had been awakened by the barking of their dog. They had been attracted by the blazing house half a mile or more up the valley, and then they saw Sam come back, take his bath, and retire.

The story of these girls had much to do with the arrest and subsequent confession of Kaahui. He also confessed that the morning following the crime, he found his clothes covered with blood, which he said had gushed from his victim's mouth and nose, so he burned these evidences of his guilt.

Ejection Bred Hatred

The feud between Sam Kaahui and Kanaa had been of considerable standing. It had been intensified by two ejection suits brought against him and his father in the March term of circuit court, both of which they lost. Two pieces of land were involved. One was claimed by the Catholic church, being the site of an old church though not used for such purpose for years, and which was leased to the Olowalu Sugar Company. The other place was some distance further up the valley and title is claimed by the sugar company. The family had been permitted to use it, apparently as tenants-at-will. A shack on each place enabled the family to divide their time between the two.

Plantation Burned House

After the ejection suits, the family refused to leave, and had to be forcibly removed with aid of the sheriff. The buildings were then burned. Instead of leaving, however, the family have been living ever since among the rocks without shelter of any kind, a short distance from their former habitation.

Kanaa Witness In Land Suit

Old man Kanaa had been a witness in the land suits against the Kaahuis, and seems to have been blamed by them for the outcome of the cases. And later when Kanaa was given the job of caring for the taro on the land in question, which had come into possession of the sugar company, the younger Kaahui waxed very bitter and made various threats of violence against the old man.

Sympathy For Old Man

Although the Kaahuis have lived in the district for several generations it is claimed that they never stayed in one place and never actually owned any land. Sympathy is expressed for the father, who is feeble, but the younger Kaahui has a bad reputation. He is reputed to be feared in the neighborhood, to have a penitentiary record, and to have lost his right hand through unlawfully dynamiting fish.

New War Picture Coming

Having seen "Civilization" and the "Battle Cry of Peace," Maui will now have an opportunity of seeing the "Flying Torpedo." This production has enjoyed very nearly as sensational a success as the other two productions.

The "Flying Torpedo" differs in that it has not as much of the morbidity of war, but more of the comedy and romance. It was shown in New York and the eastern cities at prices ranging up to $1.50. It was produced by David Warth Griffith, whose big success in the "Birth of a Nation," is known everywhere. The Kahului Lyceum will offer the picture for its first showing on Maui. Mary Hoffman's orchestra has been engaged and is rehearsing special music for the Monday night's performance.

MISS AIKEN IS SHOWERED

Miss Irene Aiken was the recipient of a kitchen shower on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. W. F. J. Dale, in Kahului. The afternoon was a most enjoyable one for those present. The bride-to-be was the recipient of a very large collection of useful and handsome presents.

Personal Mention

Mrs. H. P. Baldwin is visiting friends in Honolulu this week.

Dr. W. D. Baldwin, of Haiku, is in Honolulu this week.

H. W. Rice, of Pala is a business visitor to Honolulu this week.

Joseph Meinecke, of Pala, was a passenger to Honolulu on Monday night.

Dr. J. H. Raymond, of Ulupalakua was a returning passenger this morning from a business visit to Honolulu.

George Yamada, the well-known Honolulu contractor, is in Maui on a few days business.

Gerald M. Phelps, a new arrival from San Francisco, has taken a position with the Kahului Railroad company.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Brown, arrived on Tuesday from Honolulu by the M. Kahala. They are visiting their ranch on Molokai.

Mrs. A. B. Howell, of Kuiaha, returned home this morning by the Wilhelmina after two weeks spent visiting friends in Honolulu.

Mrs. George H. Dunn, of Lahaina, returned from Honolulu on Wednesday evening where she went to attend the marriage of her son to Miss Julia Hollinger, which occurred on the 19th.

Mrs. D. H. Case was a passenger to Honolulu on Wednesday night where she went to attend the commencement exercises of the College of Hawaii from which her son A. Hibbard Case will be graduated next week.

D. F. Balch, who for the past two years has been engineer for the loan fund commission, has finished his work and will leave Maui in a few days. He expects to make a visit to the mainland soon.

William McKay, general superintendent of the Inter-Island company, was a visitor to Lahaina on Wednesday, coming up from Honolulu and returning by the Claudine the same evening. He was investigating the burning of the steamer Hamakua.

Supervisors D. T. Fleming returned from Honolulu on Wednesday where he spent several days on business. R. H. Hitchcock of Molokai, was a visitor in Waikuku on Wednesday and Thursday on business connected with the circuit court.

Chas. R. Forbes, superintendent of public works, arrived this morning to look into loan fund work, present and prospective. If Treasurer McCarthy is successful in floating the bond issue authorized by the legislature, on which mission he is now in the East, Maui projects will be started as soon as the money is available. Forbes states. The superintendent is accompanied by his wife who is paying her first visit to Maui. They will return to Honolulu probably Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Villiers, of Waikuku, were passengers to Honolulu last Saturday to attend the 50th annual convocation of the Episcopal churches at St. Andrews cathedral.

Dan Carey, of Waikuku, was in Honolulu over Saturday and Sunday to see the horses put through their paces on the Kapiolani track preparatory to the races June 9, 11, and 16. He held the lines over his old pet Denervo for three practice heats, time: 2:18; 2:18; 2:13. Denervo is now owned by S. S. Paxson.

Lahaina Notes

Miss Siple and Miss McCracken, spent Tuesday night and Wednesday at Baldwin House.

Miss Frances Stanley of Waikuku spent Decoration Day with friends in Lahaina.

David Kalliopeini died at his home on last Thursday. He was a familiar figure about the wharf handling much of the freight here.

Mrs. Valentine of Olawalu entertained beautifully at a luncheon on Saturday. Her guests were Mrs. Knudsen and the Misses Siple, McCracken, Pratt, Merriman and Stevenson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson of Lahaina are spending the week in the Cookcroft's house on the beach.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Lufkin of Waikuku spent the week end in Lahaina.

The Boy Scouts are very much interested in their gardening project. A large tract of land has been cleared and prepared for planting. The boys are working under the direction of J. N. Souza, scout master.

On June 2, a very interesting program will be given at the Nippon Theatre by the C. E. Societies of west Maui. It will consist of music by the different societies, and by the Glee Club and Orchestra of Lahainaluna. There will also be scenes from old Hawaiian plays given in costume. The program promises to be a rare treat.

BONUS RUMOR INCORRECT

Probably through the announcement in the press that the sugar planters' association had recommended the paying on account of bonus earnings, an equivalent to 33 1/3 percent of laborers' monthly earnings instead of 20 percent as heretofore, the rumor has spread on Maui that the entire bonus is to be paid. This is not the case and is not possible as the full bonus cannot be figured from month to month. October 31 will be the end of the bonus period, as heretofore.

High School Dance Was Very Pleasing Success

The Maui High School held a dance at the Kahului Community House last Saturday night.

The hall was beautifully decorated. Banners, and of course the American flag were much in evidence. Though a shower prevented some people from attending there was a good attendance and a good sale of tickets at the door. Punch was served to the thirsty guests.

The High School County made about $50 on the dance which is to be used in paying the expenses of graduation exercises of the graduating class.

Exercises were held in the high school assembly hall last Tuesday with the following program.

The directors of the Maui county fair & racing association will hold a meeting next Tuesday afternoon at the Wailuku Town Hall. Reports of the children's gardens department, marketing department, and racing department will be heard.

Word has been received here that John M. Cunningham, who will be remembered by Maui people as the foreman of the Maui Publishing Company several years ago, has recently joined James Carey and A. J. Cooper, former Honolulu newspaper men, in opening a printing plant and newspaper in Santa Clara, California.

The racing department of the county fair and racing association is considering the proposition of having an automobile race in connection with the Fourth of July celebration at the race track. It is said that a number of local auto men are anxious to try their hand at the racing game even at the risk of breaking their necks on an unbanked half-mile track.

The Maui Cadets, a live boys' organization which has been drilling regularly for two years or more, is preparing to give an exhibition drill at the Punene Park, tomorrow afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock. The boys have been working under direction of Sergeant Wetzel, U. S. A., and it is doubtful if any amateur organization in the territory can do better in intricate drill movements than the Cadets.

Maui Man Tells How To Grow Good Onions

If onion growers in Hawaii are to be successful, they must be taught to start with the right kind of seed, was the statement yesterday of a prominent onion grower of Maui whose success is guarantee that he knows whereof he speaks.

Many growers, said the Maui man, are trying to raise the wrong kind of onions, a variety that bruises easily and has no keeping qualities. There are three principal varieties of onions, all species of Bermudas, grown in the Territory, he explained—the Silver Wax, which is a handsome, white onion, a red variety and one that is yellow. The red and yellow varieties are not nearly as handsome in appearance as the Silver Wax and for that reason he said, a great many inexperienced growers insist upon raising the Silver Wax, neglecting the red and yellow kinds.

But the fact is that the red and yellow onions are exactly as good as the Silver Wax and have the keeping quality that the latter lacks.

It should be the policy of the territorial marketing division, the Maui man said, to advise growers not to plant the poor-keeping variety of onion. Even when growers send in for seed and specify that they want the white onion, they should be advised not to get that kind but to plant one of the other varieties. Otherwise they are liable to lose their time, labor and money through raising an onion that will not keep and that consequently can with difficulty be marketed.

There is room for suggestion along the same line regarding seeds for practically every other kind of vegetables grown here.—Advertiser.

Inter-Island Vessel Burns—Two Are Lost

searching for some trace but finally gave up and put back to Lahaina.

Bottom Blown Out

Capt. Diggs reports that the bottom planks of the hulk were broke outward as by an explosion, which confirms Capt. Wichert's theory that the explosion which opened the hatches also burst the hull of the Hamakua.

May Menace Navigation

Capt. Diggs was of the opinion that the derelict would soon be aground on Kahoolawe, towards which it was being carried by the currents. It was about a mile off shore when he left it, he stated. However, some fear was expressed by shipping men that the hulk may not have grounded, in which case it would be a danger to inter-shipping.

Cause Of Fire Mystery

The cause of the fire is a mystery. It may have resulted from lime, which was in the hold becoming wet. There was also nitrate fertilizer on board, which would help the flames. Other than materials there was nothing inflammable or explosive in the hold so far as the steamship people know. It is recalled, however, a fire which occurred some years ago to an Inter-Island vessel through the breaking of a bottle of nitric acid which had been shipped in a box containing other merchandise. Capt. Wichert is inclined to some such theory. No one had been in the hold, which was battened down, after the vessel left Honolulu.

Heavy Loss To Company

William McKay, general superintendent of the Inter-Island company, would not set a figure to represent the value of the Hamakua. From the fact that it is impossible to replace her at present, however, he declared that her loss was a most serious blow to the company apart from the actual value of the craft. It is especially serious following, as it does, so closely upon the loss of the steamer Maui on the Kona coast a few months ago.

The Hamakua was bought about 18 months ago by the local company from the coast. She was the steam schooner "Shoshone," and engaged in the lumber carrying trade. She was generally refitted after her purchase, and was considered one of the best vessels of the Inter-Island fleet.

Crew Of Hamakua

The officers of the ill-fated vessel were: Capt. Carl Wichert, First Officer Geo. Nyström, Second Officer John Fisher, Purser Wm. Kekuewa, Chief Engineer George Porter, First Assistant John Perry, Second Assistant Chas. Steel.

Capt. Wichert was formerly a resident of Kahului where he was master of the Kahului Railroad Company's tug Leslie Baldwin for a number of years. After leaving Maui he sailed as first officer on the Inter-Island steamer Noeua for some time. He had been in command of the Hamakua for but a few months.

Faik—Trabus

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Trabus, on Mill Street, Wailuku, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Annie E. Trabus, to Mr. George A. Faik, on Saturday evening, May 19, at 7 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. B. Dodge, of the Wailuku Union Church, in the presence of a small number of intimate friends of the bride's family.

The bride is a charming young lady who has a host of friends in Maui where she has lived for the last 5 years. Mr. Faik, who is a valued employee of the Maui Publishing Company, has been a resident of Wailuku for a year and a half, during which time he has come to be highly thought of by those who have come to know him.

BASEBALL MIXUP STARTED IN HILO

The report that the Maui Athletic Association had issued an invitation to a Hilo baseball team to come to Maui for a game on the 4th of July, seems to have been the result of some misunderstanding in Hilo. So far as can be learned no such proposition was ever made from Maui in the name of the Maui Athletic Association or of anyone else.

An effort was made by A. A. Reis, of Wailuku, to interest the Hilo sports in taking a Maui team to the Bay City for the Fourth, but this was to be known as a Maui "All-Star" aggregation. It is still uncertain whether or not this proposition will go through.
